

After Pearl River's case

Are officials' bonds adequate?

Many bonds of supervisors in Mississippi are inadequate. This was raised last week when State Auditor W. Hampton the Pearl River County board that its members be bonded for $40,000 each, rather than the present $10,000 to comply with state law.

A subsequent check of the Hancock supervisors' bonds would show they are nearly $31,500 less than they should be.

2072 of the Mississippi Code of 1942, stipulated that the bond for each supervisor should be fixed at five per cent of the amount of state and county taxes shown by the state rolls and taxes collected for the year just before the date of the term of office of each member.

With a few variations, bonds of most other county office holders appear in line. For example, Sec. 4239 provides that in Hancock the bond shall be $5,000, and for tax collector 25 per cent of the sum of taxes assessed in the county the preceding year but not over $100,000. Cylvia J. Lechner has a $5,000 bond on which and $75,000 as tax collector. That's the same as the predecessor, Gerald V. Price, held. When John A. Elyott took office in 1944 he posted $40,000 for tax collector and back in 1928 when Joseph James embarked in the same dual office he posted $20,000 for the combined duties.

Sec. 1416 says the circuit clerk's bond shall be from $5,000 to $10,000 as determined by the board of supervisors and Lamar Ode has $10,000. Coroner and registrar Emilio G. Flores has the $2,000 fixed by Sec. 3038. The coronator under Sec. 2038 is to have from $5,000 to $10,000 as fixed by the supervisors and George E. Hattamann has $5,000.

Justices of the peace are to have $2,000 bonds, according to Sec. 1804, and all appear to comply except Burdett J. Lechner of Beat 3 who has $1,000 on a bond secured through Chandler

Lodner and Felix Lechner. The bond of A. Frank Selph of Beat

4, secured through John A. Elyott, J. Norton Hays and George

Curtis, does not show any amount.

All the constables carry the required $1,000 and the superintendent of education has $10,000 as provided in the statute.

On several occasions the bonds of various deputy sheriffs also have been filed in the courthouse records.

The instance in Pearl River County which brought into focus the bonds of public officials stemmed from a chancery court judgment of $40,808.50 plus interest of about $10,000 against former supervisor William Hays Mandy. The state has recovered $24,024.65 in the case and plans to appeal to the Supreme Court to get about $20,000 more from Mandy's bonding company for the remainder.

The state contends the bonding companies were liable for the full amount of his delinquency under state law and not solely for the low bonds which covered him—$12,000 in each of the two terms of office involved. Mandy allegedly took the money from his road fund through a dummy payroll scheme.

BULLETIN—The Echo is advised that the story on Page 9 of Section B dealing with financial responsibility for automobile damage because of the coverage construction on Bay St. Louis streets is probably misleading. Generally neither the city nor contractors are responsible for damage to the car of one who assumes the risk. In case of actual negligence damage claims might be sustained.

After replaces Murphy on board

He was elected president of the board on Jan. 1, 1963 and served in that capacity until, again for health reasons, he did not seek re-election and left the board in January, 1964.

Successfully running for school board in a November, 1964, he was sworn in in January of '67 and served for a total of nine years. During this time he was chairman for four years.

Born in 1891 in Napoleon, he attended the Napoleon School and Mississippi College, engaged in real estate occupation. Worked then worked for Western Insurance Co. and later was in charge of that corporation for both state and county.

Stressing that his resignation was caused only by his ill health Murphy said, "The board has appointed a good man in my place and one they will find a fine representative of this town."

Murphy recalled that in his early days of political office supervisors never had more than $10,000 per year to spend in the town, and stated he had never been forced into a second race. "Except for the last time I ran for school board I always had opposition but managed to forge ahead and avoid the runoff," he said.

Bauer was appointed interim trustee on a motion by trustee Lugin Necelce, seconded by trustee Eric Larson.

Bauer, who operates Pearl River Marina in Pearl River, is a member of Mississippi-Louisiana Regional Planning Commission, representative for the board of supervisors on the county airport advisory committee, chairman of the National Association and Space Administration's Mississippi-Texas Facility Historical Committee and board member of Pearl River Methodist Church.

Born in Logansport and a graduate of Logansport School and Bay High School, he served on a contract with the Corps of Engineers.

Streets again

We are as aware as most people of the problems necessarily engendered to our streets because of the sewer project. Some cannot be avoided; some, because of the weather (rain), have cost the contractors, as well as us, money.

Some inconveniences, however, are not due to the contractors nor the sewer project; they are due to inconsiderateness by people like you and me. For instance, between Washington and Citizen Streets on Beach Boulevard three vehicles were parked most of yesterday. They were parked on the main one-way lane on that street. With them there cars going toward Waveland were at the mercy of traffic in the opposing direction or had to chance the mud in the center of the street. Which would you have done?

We have no brief to file on behalf of the contractors involved in the sewerage and water program. We don't know what streets to ride going to work anymore than most of you. After promising to tell the paper what streets they intended to work the next week, they never have.

On the other hand, residents of the area have their responsibility to collaborate.

Who was responsible for blocking traffic on Beach Blvd. throughout Wednesday? Two tag numbers were Mississippi, F5 (mud) 30826 and 70847. Your friend.

Commuter bus need, fares face survey

Will the car pool win out over the projected commuter service?

This is the question officials of Dismal Transportation Co., Inc., officials were pondering when, for the second time, they met with representatives from the National Association and Space Administration's Mississippi-Texas Facility Historical Committee and board member of Pearl River Methodist Church.

Born in Logansport and a graduate of Logansport School and Bay High School, he served on a contract with the Corps of Engineers.

From the bus line were Victor Cherry, T. Mangrove and M.J. Williams, all of whom opened local negotiations on Jan. 21. They were joined this time by Dismal Transportation Robert Kelly and Chris Haddad. From NASA came B.U. Jones, community relations and George Klein, transportation. Others in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gordon, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce; Leo Clark, community relations, General Electric and four other GE representatives from the various site projects.

No firm commitment was made from either the bus company or the site officials as firm year figures were not at hand. To make these available the group decided to conduct a survey of the site and surrounding area to be completed, Gulfport to Waveland - not the other way around. In addition to determining the number of possible passengers the survey is to be used for the service company.

The Dismal Transportation Co. would be made in each location, subject to approval by local authorities.

Discussions again arose over the tentative fare schedule and the bus line for the period time agreed to change their position.

Freeze cripples water system

Hancock fights for gas rebate

An eight-member delegation represented Hancock County before the Mississippi House of Representatives Highway Committee in Jackson Tuesday in opposition to a bill to eliminate certain gasoline tax refunds to the three Gulf Coast counties.

Rubie Griffin, attorney for the board of supervisors and spokesman for the local group, testified that money to sorely needed to rebuild from Hurricane Betsy's damage. "To put additional burden on the people of Hancock County at this time would be disastrous," he asserted.

Griffin predicted that Hancock's population could be doubled in 10 years if the rebate, if not removed, maintaining increased sales taxes as a result would more than make up the difference in the state

The threat of elimination of of paramount interest to Hancock now since the board of supervisors has given notice of intent to file a lawsuit to stop a $1,750,000 bond issue for port and airport development utilizing the gas refund to help retire the issue.

Others from here at the hearing were Supervisor H. G. Deane and Deputy Keller; Mayor John A. Scellics of Bay St. Louis; Elliot Conner, Joseph V. Colson and Edward Schombach of the port and harbor committee, and J. Norton Hays, port secretary or officer. State Senator James Necelce and Rep. Walter J. Phillips also were on hand.

House Bill No. 29 proposed to cut off almost two of certain gasoline tax refunds to the counties of Hancock, Harrison and this course of revenue. Under a complicated tax formula, each county since 1934 have been keeping one and three-fourths cents of the state's share of the tax on each gallon of gas sold in Hancock, Harrison and Jackson Counties, for upkeep of U.S. 90 and the seawall.

In recent years this tax has helped fund industrial seawall projects in Harrison County, Bayou Canote Port facilities in Jackson County and to construct the new four-lane bridge on U. S. 90 at Biloxi-Ocean Springs.

If passed, the bill now before the highway committee would place the problem of federal highway maintenance with the state highway department and take away county authority to sell bonds based on the gasoline tax. The state would take charge of payment of all cur-

January left Hancock County like a polar bear last weekend.

Temperatures plummeted early Sunday to lows of 13 degrees in Bay St. Louis where householders' frozen pipes and broken water lines compounded problems of the utility installation program, and to 15 degrees in the north county and at Mississippi Test Facility's weather bureau.

After another frigid night Sunday, the mercury started to rise Monday bringing forth an avalanche of broken pipes and reducing water pressure to a dribble in parts of Bay St. Louis.

It wasn't the cold weather but the lack of water for sanitation facilities which forced Bay St. Louis public schools to stay closed Monday, according to Superintendent J.D. McCulloch. Broken lines kept Volusia C. Jones School without water Tuesday and classes were limited to half a day while the rest of the city system reopened in spite of low pressures.

Brother Robert, who mans the weather observation station at St. Stanislaus College, said Sunday's high temperature was 25 degrees. No low reading was available for Monday because of incorrect stationing of equipment. Friday night's thunderstorm dumped only .50 inches of rain on the city and Monday night's rain amounted to .10 inch.

At MTF, the high and low readings for Saturday were 51 and 19 degrees; for Sunday, 35 and 15 and for Monday, 57 at midnight and 21. Lowest temperature ever recorded there since the station opened in 1962 was 7 degrees on Dec. 13, 1962.

Fairley Necelce at the forestry commission's Rocky Hill Tower reported 15 degrees was the low reading at 9 a.m. Sunday with the high of 31 at 1 p.m. By 8 p.m. the mercury had dipped to 24. It was 31 at 9 a.m. Monday and the climb has continued since then.

Betsy rebuild cost cut

No building permit fees for repairs will be required of Waveland homeowners whose houses were damaged by Hurricane Betsy. A building permit will still be required.

Such was the tenor of the motion passed without opposition at Tuesday night's session of Town Council.

At the request of Dix Ambrose, local realtor, based in the amount of $8,000 rather than $14,000 on Class A-1 division was accepted. The ordinance also authorized Dismal and Associates, New Orleans engineers, to prepare plans for federal aid for construction of a new town hall with provision for a civil defense shelter. The engineers will be paid only if the new structure is built.

Briefly council considered association plans but were advised by town attorney Lucian M. Cox, Jr., that some details still need to be worked out. Presumably in this connection council recessed from day to day.

The only other matter considered besides routine paying of bills was a $200 advertisement in the program for the 33rd Carnival Ball of St. Joseph Academy.

Hancock North Central and Bay High clashed for the last time this season Tuesday night in Central's gym and it was the Hawks all the way, the girls winning the preliminary, 46-41, and the boys taking the special finale, 75-59.

Wendell Linder again proved beyond any doubt that he is one of the top pass centers in the state pumping in 34 points. James Linder III for a cold 24 and Kenny Randall 12. For the Tigers Mike Neece scored 17, Bruce Cox 10 and Mike Suray 9.

The Hawks' Brenda Faye topped her mates with 16 followed by Valerie Malloy 15, and JoAnn Ladner 14. For Bay High it was Pat Perniciaro 15, Marsha Compton 11 and Ellen McDonald 10.

The Hawks play Harrison Central there Friday and host West Lafourcade Saturday.

Bay High enters the Ocean Springs Friday then winds up its conference schedule Feb. 8 against Pass Christian High there.

Plenty of fireworks are still in store for basketball fans, however, with the sub-district tournament scheduled for Feb. 10 and the district tourney Feb. 16.

But the Hawks are in Class A and the Tigers AA so will not meet.

CD investigates fallout shelters

With 1960 as a target date and selected fallout shelter spaces for all Americans as an objective, civil defense personnel are conducting a series of meetings to familiarize themselves with the upcoming community shelter program.

In Bay St. Louis the only fallout shelter is under the post office and, according to Bert Stedford, CD director, large for others in the Waveland, except for private shelters, in Waveland.

"When we hear of a new building or of extensive alterations going to be undertaken on an existing structure we approach the owners to see if a shelter can be combined with building plans," Stedford said.

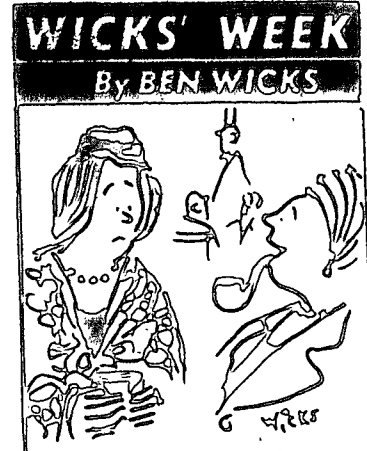

The main drawback to the on again off again flow of federal matching funds for such endeavors and the increase in cost necessitated by including a shelter.

"Building in this area is, generally speaking, not of a type suitable for shelter inclusion," Stedford said.

Areas affected by the community shelter program are calculated with 10 or more shelter facilities, 1,000 or more shelter spaces, 25,000 population or any combination of the three.

In other civil defense activities, Stedford, section chief, chemical, biological and radiological defense, is preparing to attend a radiological defense officer course this month in Biloxi.

In connection with the civil defense program Stedford expects the civil defense has plans and speakers available on a variety of related topics.

Thursday night, American Legion Auxiliary juniors are working hard on their latest project. This surprising group has adopted a ten year old orphan named Pauline, who lives in St. Mary's in Natchez. Mary Ann Baker and Sandra Guyton were called on Saturday to obtain funds to change the young lady's wardrobe.

Mary Gottschalk and Helen Daniel are now reading Bay High.

Amy Lynch celebrated her 15th birthday at her home where they attended The Boy Friend on Friday night.

Bud Bellamy in due course congratulations having scored a 90 on the written portion of his drivers test last Tuesday, Jan. 25, which was his 15th birthday.

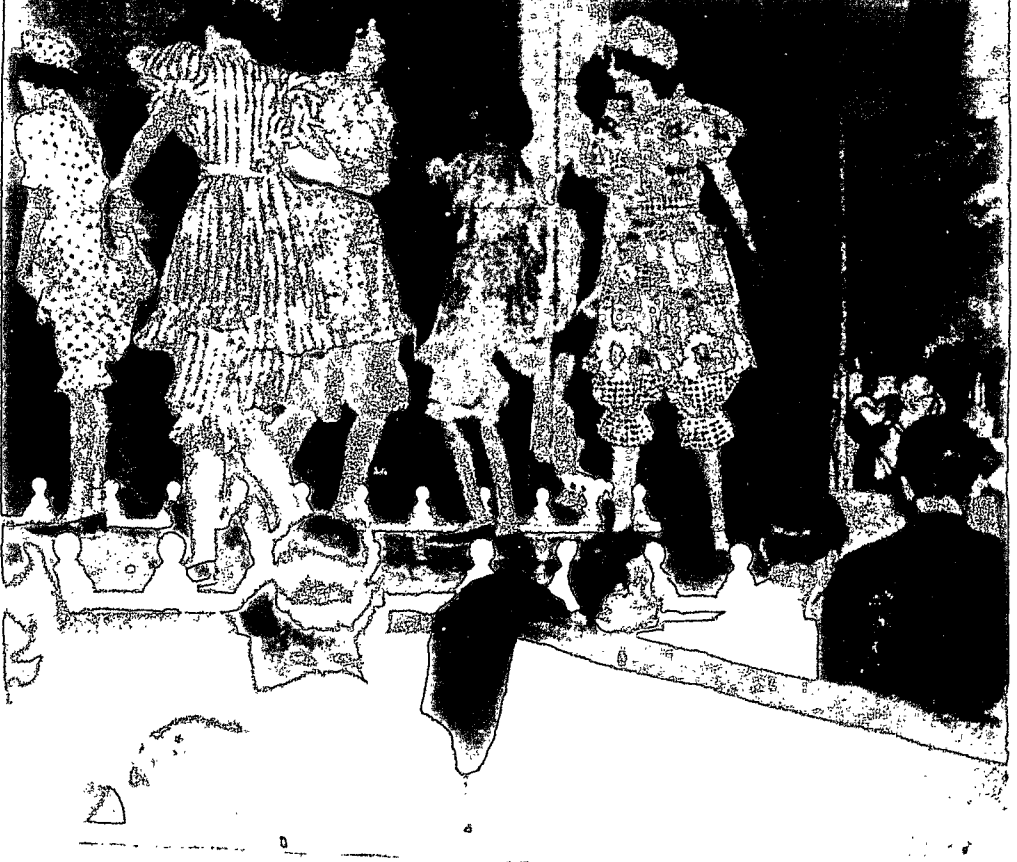

We're keeping our fingers crossed for Bay St. Louis' Junior Miss, Dale Russell, who left yesterday for the state contest today, Friday and Saturday.

We're proud to be the Duke Drive, P.M.'s sponsor publication, for the next few hours.

Prissy Dewey, daughter of Mrs. Laura Senor of Waveland, was elected Miss P.M. in Who's Who voting on Jan. 12.

Alfred Wren, a sophomore engineering major, was one of two who received the annual Crown Zellerbach scholarship at PRJC in November.

A bit of trouble from the poor corner, Crutcher up the river, was the question. Why has Miss (Agnes, no doubt) been seen so frequently around El Highway? And where did Leroy take her the telephone "four-Scotchball team members, Larry Johnson, Eddie Peterson and the "Peculiar Fly" Leta have been averaging 11.1, 7.6 and 5.1 points per game, respectively.

At the end of football season all-state honorable mention honors went to Dick Wren who apparently possesses both brains and brawn.

something to do with Valentine's day?

Janet Trapp also goes home for you're feeling better, having had surgery in a New Orleans hospital on Wednesday.

Our gal Jeanne Rutherford came through with a bunch of news for us, which follow:

Local CYO members leaving Feb. 4, to attend the state convention in Jackson include: Joan Rutherford, Janet King, Lenny King, Dickie Ladd, Lenny King, Margaret MacDowell, Kathy Brown, Steve MacDowell, Charles Baskin, Holly Haydon, Sharon Mard, Annazo Varga, Frank Loggins, Pam Smith, Conde Deanna, Barry Fawc, Romie La Fontaine, Marnie Kingma, Bart Cheval and Pam Beavert, who is a candidate for treasurer of the state organization. Margaret MacDowell and Janet Kingma are voting delegates.

Sharon Mard was elected to represent the Bay CYO for queen of the CYO Mardi Gras in Bilbort on Feb. 13. A parade will begin at 2:30 p.m. from the USO, to be followed by the coronation ball at 8 p.m. The coronation ball will be from 8 until 10.

The next CYO dance will be from 8 until 11 p.m. Feb. 19. Admission prices will be as usual and anyone attending must present his or her dance card.

Mary Blumley presiding at the rally and Fay MacDowell who were 1 on Feb. 2.

Dora Simmons and David O'Mahon are still a steady couple.

Pvt. Steve Burch has returned to Fort Leonard, Mo., after spending a 14 day leave at home.

Newly elected officers of Bay High 4-H club are Kathy Brown, president; Barry Jo Kingma, vice president; Jane Jacobo, reporter (keep on the ball, girl); Conde Hanks and Cheryl McCullough, recreation

HELP. . . Pam, Pike's mother has over run classified this in a vain attempt to replace Pam's 1965 Bay High car, but when Barry dumped over two feet of water into their home. Surely there is someone who has to look for a car. The car was not damaged and would be willing to call. . . If you place let Pam know, so that you the only one who really felt badly about.

The living doll, Holly Raul, was home for a few days during her semester break from Milligan. Guess another former Echo employee, Harry S. Satch, was too, but although we're all still "Wild about Harry", we fear he doesn't love us any more!

Ray Kidd is helping his parents at Ray's Restaurant until time for him to enroll at Southern in March. . . we had hoped to be able to catch our readers up on his love life, but he "took the 5th" upon grounds that anything he said would end up in print. . . which it did anyway!

Auto claim routine set by city hall

When the claim is made on a City car or on a car damaged through being struck by a City car, the claim will be forwarded to the contractor, J. C. Glover.

To claim with insurance companies the fastest or easiest claim should be reported immediately. "City police have been instructed to complete a special accident report and then will be forwarded to the contractor," Glover said.

Emphasizing that no tickets for obstruction would be issued Glover indicated the new arrangement would result in much faster payment of claims by the contractor's insurance company.

"Once we have this system working properly any inconvenience arising out of claim delays will be very minimized," he said.

Completing his remarks he again emphasized the importance of leaving the car at the scene. "The report completed by police will serve, in part, as a verification of the claim," he concluded.

Stanislaus pupils

soo science show

A team of technicians from Kessler Air Force Base presented an electronic demonstration Tuesday at St. Stanislaus College under auspices of the Stanislaus and National Academies of Science and their school visitation program.

The exhibition included closed circuit television, the Jacobo ladder, Teal coil and Lora beam.

Physico students later viewed a film on micro circuitry.

TOVER GOING UP

Construction on Needles secondary tower has been slowed due to bad weather but crews are now back on the job and the project is showing good progress.

Scouts name Leaghty as chairman

Charles C. Leaghty, was named chairman of Bay-Warwick District Bay Scouts of America during elections conducted last Thursday in the American Legion.

Others elected to serve were Warren Baskin, assistant chairman; Theodore Baskin, commodore; Fred Foyard, organization and extension; Walker P. Turcotte, Polly peers . . .

(Cont. from Page 4-B.) have elaborate plans for the Broadview which they are in the process of completely remodeling. It's to have a brand new name, and this over comes up with the best suggestion will benefit substantially financially. . . we'll have further details on this project just as soon as the new door is complete.

We are still on the Bascil tick, but want to report that Marie (Mrs. Kay) Carter's brother sold his pupa before departing for the overseas assignment. He didn't call them directly to a column reader, but to someone who told someone else about the write-up.

One of our good friends in good faith took a chance on a benefit. . . he was to have won a set of Teflon but is still waiting to receive his prize. This sort of thing is not only dishonest, but makes it bad on legitimate cases when they work to obtain funds!

More get well wishes. . . this time to Mrs. Joyce Toth who is slowly recuperating after receiving a massive hit from the flu bug.

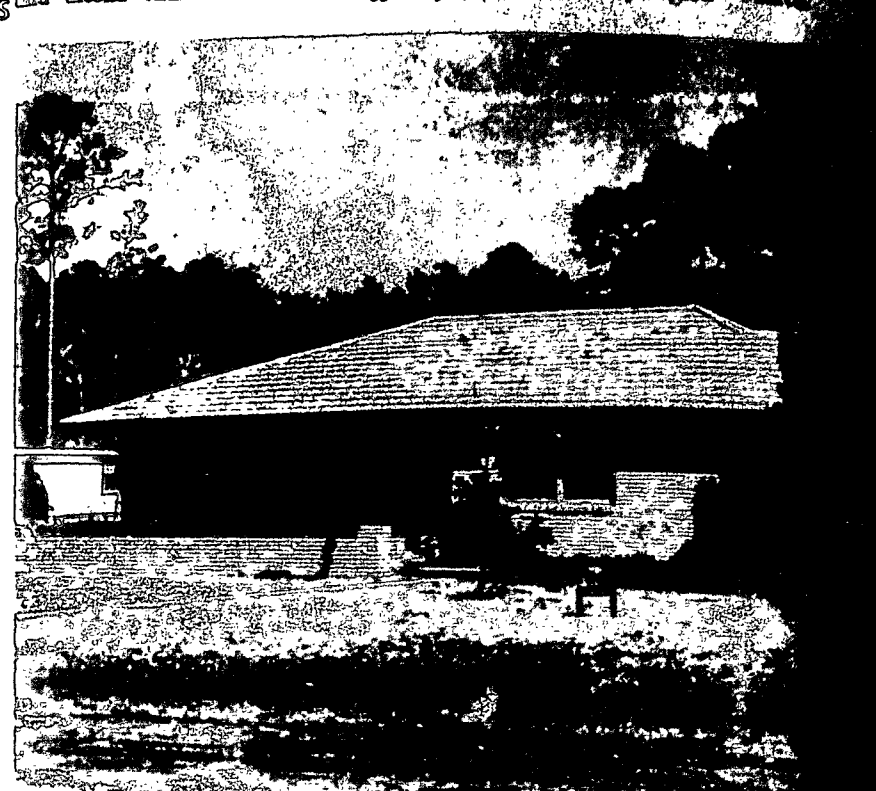

SIGHTS AND SOUNDS ALONG THE WAY - Brilliant scarlet, camellia blossoms drooping and darkening under the influence of old Jack Frost; flocks of puzzled birds flying in erratic patterns as they are tossed about on the howling wind; green almost unbroken, giving the area the aura of a giant town on overboard hibernated from the icy breeze and the sound of a come as it meanders around and seems to creep through the very walls.

Bonvouit, advance-ment; Charles Seims, secretary and Harold Sander, chapter editor.

"Your Heritage" is the theme for scouting for February and all Bay Scouts are to wear their uniforms to school on Tuesday and attend church in uniform next Sunday, Feb. 13, in recognition of Bay Scout Week, Leaghty said.

Forcoming scout activities were given as, Mardi Gras, Feb. 22; all scouts to parade in uniform; Cub Scouts banquet, Feb. 24, Legion Hall; Court of Honor, Wed. March 23, Legion
